

Cara A. McNulty, M.S

Cara McNulty is currently the Assistant to the Commissioner of Health in charge of Health Care Reform and Transformation for the Minnesota Department of Health. She also provides leadership direction for the Steps to a HealthierMN and Coordinated School Health initiatives.

Ms. McNulty has been working in the area of school health for the past 11 years emphasizing the link between health and learning. She is nationally published in the areas of Coordinated School Health implementation, GLBT issues, and chronic disease prevention.

Ms. McNulty has worked as the former Coordinated School Health Infrastructure Director for the Minnesota Department of Health, the Coordinated School Health Program Director for the South Dakota Department of Education, and held both HIV prevention and education positions during her career.

Ms. McNulty has a Masters of Science in School and College Health and is currently working on a doctoral degree in Public Administration and Policy Development.